Maire Loughran is a self-employed certified public accountant (CPA) who has prepared compilation, review, and audit reports for fifteen years. Additionally, she is a university professor of undergraduate- and graduate-level accounting classes.

This book is a real beginner's book for someone who aspires to learn what auditing is all about. Having said that, this book is far from becoming a supplement to preparing for CPA exam or for a college audit course.

I purchased this book just for the basics of auditing. This book was probably created with a "dummy" in mind, well dumb to the subject if he or she has never studied it before. I am not planning to use this book for a thesis or anything but it does contain some basics on the subject of auditing. I recommend this for just basic information only. I can see a college instructor's face and reaction if this book is used for anything other than simply reading it.

Helped break things down while studying for the audit section of the CPA exam. This is NOT a CPA review book, but can help break down some topics you may struggle with to 'dummy' level

I love the dummies books. They help to explain things in a much simpler term and I find I learn great from these. The Auditing for Dummies was no exception.

It is ok. I understand that the topic is hard to explain in a structured way. At least give you an idea about auditing, the procedures, and some about tests and techniques. No bad .

How could you love a book about Auditing, well it is making auditing more understandable.

I am IT manager with limited audit experience. While working on SAP systems, I want to develop my career with combination of IT and finance.If you want to take CPA exam this book may lack depth. Nonetheless my motivation is to get gist of audit process without going back to college. It serves me well. I was able to read through the book in two weeks. Considering my limited knowledge of auditing and accounting, this book is written in PLAIN ENGLISH for dummies like IT managers

Got me a promotion so i rate it a 5.
