This map of Mount Rainier National Park, WA (number 217) at 1:55,000 & 1:27,500 from National Geographic is one of the Trails Illustrated outdoor recreation maps to America's National Parks and National Recreation Areas. Long-established as leading wilderness and backcountry activity maps, these tough waterproof and rip-proof maps are available for protected and public lands across the US. Within the park, there is detailed coverage of Mount Rainier and its many glaciers, Eagles Roost, Cataract Valley, Mystic, Emmons Overlook, Indian Bar, Maple Creek, Snow Lake, Paradise River, Jackson, and many other camping areas. A detailed inset gives you a close-up view of the peak and trails leading to its glaciers. --itmb

While not as detailed as Green Trails maps for Rainier (you have to buy 3 different maps for Rainier if buy GT) the Nat. Geo. map for Rainier is the better choice, especially for those doing The Wonderland Trail. The reason is that the map is tear proof and water proof...something that Green Trails has never caught a clue on. It folds up compactly as well. My suggestion is to use the Green Trails maps to plan at home (for detail and mileage) then carry the robust Nat. Geo one with you.
